10 Sheiks Kidnapped in Iraq

Tribal leaders abducted after talks on combatting al-Qaeda

BAGHDAD | Gunmen in Baghdad snatched 10 Sunni and Shiite tribal sheiks from their cars Sunday as they were heading home to Diyala province after talks with the government on fighting al-Qaeda, and at least one was later found shot to death. The bold kidnapping came as the top U.S. commander in Iraq, Gen. David Petraeus, said the threat from the terror network has been "significantly reduced" in the capital. The two cars carrying the sheiks — seven

Sunnis and three Shiites — were ambushed in Baghdad's predominantly Shiite neighborhood of Shaab at about 3:30 p.m., police officials said. The sheiks were returning to Diyala province after attending a meeting with the Shiite-dominated government's adviser for tribal affairs to discuss coordinating efforts against al-Qaeda in Iraq, police and a relative said. Police found the bullet-riddled body of one of the Sunni sheiks, Mishaan Hilan, about 50 yards away from where the ambush took place, an officer said, adding that the victim was identified after his cell phone was found on him. The well-planned attack was the latest to target anti-al-Qaeda tribal leaders and other officials in an apparent bid to intimidate them from joining the U.S.-sponsored grassroots strategy that the military says has contributed to a recent drop in violence. WEATHER

Maybe a Drought Festival Would Work

The rain festival in Woodstock, Ga., meant to fight the drought even included a rain dance, but turnout was slim and precipitation was even scarcer than people on Saturday. Competition was part of the problem. "There's a lot of festivals going on elsewhere—the Ellijay Apple Festival, the pumpkin patches, haunted houses, Cagle Dairy's Corn Maize Festival," landscaper Linda Boyer said. Water Authority employees handed out pamphlets and water-saving shower heads. Recycled water gurgled in a wishing well set up in the parking lot outside the Woodstock Art Center. (AP)

Aunt Edna Wasn't Whining — It Really WAS a Money Pit

Old coins worth as much as $200,000 were found in an abandoned home in Windber, Pa., including piles thrown down a hole in the wall. Jeff Bidelman, owner of Rare Collectibles, said he was helping the family clean out the house after the death of the owners, who had not lived there for 20 years. He noticed a hole in an upstairs wall. "The woman said when she was a kid, there were always rumors that that's where they threw their money," he said. Within minutes of tearing down the first-floor wall, they'd found the trove. (AP)

COSTUME RACES

For Love Or Muddy

More than 600 people got down and dirty for the Mud Run 5K race in Little Rock, Ark., on Saturday, which ends in a 300-foot-long mud pit. Unlike most track events, which stick to awards for first, second and third places, this one also awards prizes for Best Costume (we doubt Carla Reese, left, won with her runaway bride outfit), Best Entrance Into the Pit, Best Performance While in the Pit, Dirtiest and Cleanest, according to Mudrun.org. Against the rules: diving into the mud headfirst. (EXPRESS)

Bad Drivers Multiply Faster Than Bunnies

As many as 10 vehicles drove around barriers and onto freshly poured concrete on a busy Mequon, Wis., thoroughfare during rush hour. Two got stuck. "Once someone goes around the barricade and busts through the tape, others follow," Sgt. Tony Restivo said. The drivers started bypassing the barriers about 6:30 p.m. Wednesday. Several quickly realized their mistake and were able to get back onto pavement. But a 2004 Lexus and a 2004 Mercury Marquis continued forward, became stuck and had to be towed. (AP)

U.N. Official: Iran Not Building Nuke

Nuclear watchdog says conflict with U.S. could lead to disaster

WASHINGTON | The head of the U.N. nuclear watchdog said Sunday he had no evidence Iran was working actively to build nuclear weapons and expressed concern that escalating rhetoric from the U.S. could bring disaster.

"We have information that there has been maybe some studies about possible weaponization," said Mohamed ElBaradei, who leads the International Atomic Energy Agency. "That's why we have said that we cannot give Iran a pass right now, because there is still a lot of question marks."

"But have we seen Iran having the nuclear material that can readily be used into a weapon? No. Have we seen an active weaponization program? No."

Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice accused Iran this month of "lying" about the aim of its nuclear program. She said there is no doubt Tehran wants the capability to produce nuclear weapons and has deceived the IAEA.

Vice President Dick Cheney has raised the prospect of "serious consequences" if Iran were found to be working toward developing a nuclear weapon.

ElBaradei said he was worried about the growing rhetoric from the U.S., which he noted focused on Iran's alleged intentions to build a nuclear weapon rather than evidence the country was actively doing so. If there is actual evidence, ElBaradei said he would welcome seeing it.

"I'm very much concerned about confrontation, building confrontation, because that would lead absolutely to a disaster." (AP)

7 Students Die in N.C. House Fire

OCEAN ISLE BEACH, N.C. | An early morning fire ravaged a beach house occupied by more than a dozen college students on Sunday, killing seven and sending several more to a hospital.

Officials at the University of South Carolina said six of the students who died were from the school in Columbia, S.C.; the seventh attended Clemson University.

"It's a very sad day for the University of South Carolina family," said Dennis Pruitt, dean of students.

The fire struck the house early Sunday and burned through the first and second floors.

Neighbor Jeff Newsome said the students were going back and forth between the houses all weekend.

"We didn't have any big complaints," Newsome said. "The lights were on all night. They were having a good time." ESTES THOMPSON (AP)

Driver on Wrong Side Blamed for Interstate Deaths

CHICAGO | A 29-year-old man driving the wrong way on an expressway west of downtown early Sunday caused a fiery crash that left five people dead, including himself, state police said.

Authorities identified the driver as Frederick Sy. The accident closed all the lanes on Interstate 290 for nearly three hours, said Illinois State Trooper Ivan Bukaczyk.

"A man was driving a Volvo westbound in the eastbound lanes when he collided head-on with a BMW carrying four people," Bukaczyk said. "The BMW then burst into flames — almost an explosion. It was also hit by a van that couldn't stop in time." The van driver reportedly escaped major injury. (AP)

Torture Key in Vote for AG

Lawmakers threaten to oppose Mukasey over waterboarding

WASHINGTON | A Republican on the Senate Judiciary Committee said Sunday he might consider opposing Michael Mukasey's nomination for attorney general if the former judge says waterboarding is not torture.

Sen. Lindsey Graham, R-S.C., joined two top Senate Democrats in urging Mukasey to disclose his views. Mukasey so far has refused to say explicitly what his position is on the lawfulness of the interrogation technique.

"I am urging him that he needs to come forward. If he does not believe that waterboarding is illegal, then that would really put doubts in my own mind, because I don't think you have to have a lot of knowledge about the law to understand this technique violates" the Geneva Convention and other statutes, Graham said.

Last week, Senate Judiciary Committee Chairman Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., and Senate Majority Whip Dick Durbin of Illinois said their votes would hinge on whether Mukasey states his answer on the record.

Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., said the waterboarding issue was an important one as he decides whether to support Mukasey's nomination.

"Anyone who says they don't know if waterboarding is torture or not has no experience in the conduct of warfare and national security," said McCain, a 2008 presidential candidate and a former prisoner of war in Vietnam.

"It isn't about an interrogation technique," he added. "It isn't about whether someone is really harmed or not. It's about what kind of a nation we are. We are a nation that takes the moral high ground." (AP)

Spacewalking astronauts found a problem during an inspection of solar panels on the international space station, above.

Astronauts Uncover Joint Problem

Metal shavings found in part that rotates station's solar panels

CAPE CANAVERAL, FLA. | Spacewalking astronauts doing construction work outside the international space station Sunday made a disturbing discovery: what appear to be metal shavings inside a joint that is needed to turn a set of solar power panels.

The rotary joint, 10 feet in diameter, has experienced intermittent vibrations and power spikes for nearly two months. Space station managers were hoping a thermal cover or bolt might be hanging up the mechanism, which would have been easy to fix, and were disheartened when Daniel Tani radioed that metal shavings were everywhere.

"It's quite clear that it's metal-to-metal grating or something, and it's widespread," Tani said.

The shavings resembled small flakes and were clinging to the joint as if to a magnet, Tani said.

This rotary joint, launched and installed just four months ago, controls the huge solar panel wings on the right side of the space station, to make sure they're facing the sun.

It's too soon to know whether the joint will affect science operations, said Mike Suffredini, NASA's space station program manager.

"We have lots of time to work through this problem. It's not an immediate issue," Suffredini said.

Calif. Wildfire Victims Give Thanks

Survivors find reasons to be grateful as crews work to temper blazes

SAN DIEGO | Survivors of firestorms that destroyed more than 2,000 homes in Southern California found reasons to be thankful Sunday, even as the damage toll mounted and firefighters worked to contain blazes.

Fire officials kept an eye on warm, dry weather that moved in behind a tropical system that allowed fire crews to make gains Saturday.

Michele Schreiner prays at the Rancho Bernardo Community Presbyterian Church Sunday in Rancho Bernardo, Calif. Sixty of the church's families lost their homes.

"This is fire conditions that we can actively fight, unlike the Santa Ana winds," said Daniel Berlant, a spokesman for the California Department of Forestry and Fire Protection.

Despite the destruction, victims in some of the hardest-hit communities gave thanks at church services.

Sixty families that attend the Rancho Bernardo Community Presbyterian Church lost their homes. At church Sunday, they gave thanks for the big things: for lives saved, for families and for friends.

Nancy Hylbert was thankful for a wrought-iron ice cream table and chairs that survived outside, and a terra cotta statue of a cat from her garden. "They are the only links with my past," she said.

Barbara Warden escaped her home with only three boxes of photographs and her grandfather's cuckoo clock.

"We're sitting in church and I'm saying to myself, 'Our lives will never be the same,'" she said.

A day earlier, she sifted through the ashes of her home and found a sundial her husband had given her. It was engraved with the message: "Grow old along with me. The best is yet to be."

"That says it all, doesn't it?" she said. "We have a lot to be thankful for. We have each other."

Kurdish Rebels Kill 15 Turks

Attack helicopters buzzed over a hilly region in southeastern Turkey on Sunday looking for Kurdish rebels after troops reportedly killed 15 separatist guerrillas in a morning operation far from the increasingly tense border with Iraq. The fighting occurred in the predominantly Kurdish province of Tunceli, as the government pressed on with its efforts against the Kurdistan Worker's Party, or PKK, whose fighters have killed at least 42 people in the past month in raids on Turkish territory. Darfur Peace Talks Grind to a Halt

Rebel leaders' absence squelch any hopes of striking a quick deal

SIRTE, LIBYA | Crippled by the absence of Darfur rebel leaders, U.N.-brokered peace talks ground to a halt on Sunday, with officials saying there could be no key steps until the fighters decided how to negotiate with the Sudanese government.

The U.N. and African Union joint mediation team refused to say the conference was being adjourned, insisting instead that preliminary low-level talks were part of the meeting's first phase before full-fledged negotiations could begin.

"Only after that period ... of approximately three weeks will we go into substantial negotiations," Jan Eliasson, the United Nations' chief mediator for the peace conference, told The Associated Press.

No major Darfur rebel chiefs were present in the Libyan coastal town of Sirte for the opening of the talks on Saturday, dashing hopes that a quick peace agreement could be reached to end more than four years of fighting with the Sudanese government.

Though mediators cautioned that the Libyan talks were not ending because rebel leaders were absent, Liu Guijin, the special envoy from China — which has considerable leverage on Sudan's government — said the peace conference would likely be suspended within a few days to allow for more constructive peace talks later.

"The adjournment is not a sign of failure. It's a preparation of other steps," Liu told the AP.

Eliasson said more chiefs were expected to arrive in Sirte to prepare for the negotiations. He said preparations could last as long as three weeks. Other rebel leaders want to hold their own preparatory meetings in Darfur.

Israel Cuts Fuel Into Gaza Strip

Government delivers on promise to step up pressure on Hamas

GAZA CITY, GAZA STRIP | Israel began cutting vital fuel shipments to the Gaza Strip on Sunday, following through on a promise to step up pressure on the territory's Hamas rulers after months of Palestinian rocket attacks.

Dor Alon, the Israeli energy company that sells fuel to Gaza, confirmed it received instructions from the Israeli Defense Ministry to reduce shipments.

The Israeli Defense Ministry said in a statement Sunday that the Sufa crossing between Gaza and Israel has been closed. That crossing is used for transporting cargo in and out of Gaza. Its closing leaves only a smaller cargo crossing in operation. The fuel cut drew harsh condemnation from Palestinians in Gaza, which relies on Israel for all its fuel and more than half its electricity.

"This is a serious warning to the people of the Gaza Strip. Their lives are now in danger," said Ahmed Ali, deputy director of Gaza's Petroleum Authority. "The hospitals, water pumping station and sewage will now be affected by the lack of fuel."

U.S. to Cede Karbala Control to Iraqis

BAGHDAD | U.S. forces will turn over security to Iraqi authorities in the southern Shiite province of Karbala on Monday, the American commander for the area said, despite fighting between rival militia factions that has killed dozens.

Karbala will become only the eighth of Iraq's 18 provinces to revert to Iraqi control, despite President Bush's prediction in January that the Iraqi government would have responsibility for security in all of the provinces by November.

But the target date has slipped repeatedly, highlighting the difficulties in developing Iraqi police forces and the slow pace of economic and political progress in areas still troubled by daily violence.

A bomb struck a mainly Shiite town southeast of Baghdad on Saturday for the second time in less than a week, the deadliest attack on a day in which at least 23 people were killed or found dead.

From President's Wife to President

Fernandez de Kirchner likely to be Argentina's first female president

BUENOS AIRES, ARGENTINA | First lady Cristina Fernandez de Kirchner, whose husband is credited with Argentina's rebound from an economic collapse, overshadowed 13 rivals Sunday in her bid to become her country's first elected woman president.

Fernandez de Kirchner, a senator who harnessed President Nestor Kirchner's achievements in bringing Argentina back from a $100 billion debt default, won the support of many Argentines despite offering few original proposals.

Her closest challengers, former lawmaker Elisa Carrio and former Economy Minister Roberto Lavagna, were trying to force her into a Nov. 25 runoff, but all major pre-election polls showed her getting the 40 percent — with a lead of more than 10 percent — she needs to win outright.

The next president faces challenges including high inflation, an energy shortage and rampant crime.

Fernandez de Kirchner refused to debate and spent much of the campaign abroad in photo-ops with world leaders. Her chic European dresses and designer bags drew comparisons with "Evita" Peron. She has also been compared to U.S. Sen. Hillary Rodham Clinton, who like Fernandez is a lawyer and senator who soldiered alongside a husband as he rose from small-state governor to the presidency.

Fernandez de Kirchner rejected both comparisons. "There's nothing better than being yourself," she said recently. BILL CORMIER (AP)

Myanmar: 'Bully' U.S. Brought on Demonstrations

YANGON, MYANMAR | Myanmar's military government stepped up its propaganda campaign against the United States on Sunday, accusing Washington of inciting last month's pro-democracy demonstrations in hopes of installing a puppet government.

Troops crushed the protests by shooting at demonstrators on Sept. 26-27 and arresting almost 3,000 protesters, including Buddhist monks. "Recent protests in the country were created by the loud-mouthed bully, using the exiled dissidents and traitors together with communists, internal and external anti-government destructionists," said a commentary Sunday in the Myanmar-language Myanma Ahlin daily. (AP)

498 Spanish Victims Are Beatified

Vatican honors group subject to persecution during long civil war

VATICAN CITY | The Vatican staged its largest mass beatification ceremony ever Sunday, putting 498 victims of religious persecution before and during Spain's civil war on the path to possible sainthood.

The ceremony has drawn criticism from some in Spain who see it as implicit criticism of the current Socialist government as it takes a critical look at the country's civil war past and the fascist dictatorship of Gen. Francisco Franco, which was supported by the Roman Catholic Church.

Seventy-one bishops from Spain, a host of Spanish politicians and Spanish pilgrims massed in St.

Faithful hold photos of Spanish martyrs and Spanish flags during a mass beatification at the Vatican on Sunday. Some say it is a critique of Spain's current regime.

Peter's Square for the ceremony, waving Spanish flags and breaking into applause after Cardinal Jose Saraiva Martins, prefect of the Vatican's Congregation for the Causes of Saints, declared the 498 beatified.

Spain's 1936-39 civil war pitted an elected, leftist government against right-wing forces that rose up under Franco, who went on to win and presided over a nearly 40-year dictatorship staunchly supported by the Catholic Church.

Violence against clergy had been simmering since 1931, with leftist forces targeting the institution they saw as a symbol of wealth, repression and inequality. Their attacks against the clergy gave Franco a pretext for launching his rebellion. The church estimates that nearly 7,000 clergy were killed in Spain from 1931 to 1939. NICOLE WINFIELD (AP)

Pre-Colonization Site Discovered In the Caribbean

SAN JUAN, PUERTO RICO | U.S. and Puerto Rican archaeologists say they have found the best-preserved pre-Columbian site in the Caribbean, which could shed light on virtually every aspect of Indian life in the region, from sacred rituals to eating habits.

The archaeologists believe the site in southern Puerto Rico may have belonged to the Taino or pre-Taino people who inhabited the island before European colonization. It contains stones etched with ancient petroglyphs that form a large plaza measuring about 130 feet by 160 feet, which could have been used for ball games or ceremonial rites, said Aida Belen Rivera, director of the Puerto Rican Historic Conservation office. Philip Morris Adds Research Space

Tobacco manufacturer opens $350M science facility in Richmond

RICHMOND, VA. | With waning cigarette sales due to concerns about health, smoking bans and price increases, Philip Morris USA is staking its future in a new research center meant to develop products to reduce the risk of tobacco use.

The addition of the $350 million, 450,000-square-foot Center for Research and Technology, with its facade of large windows, nearly doubles the company's research space and gives the Richmond company's scientists and engineers one facility in which to collaborate on new projects.

The center, which is currently occupied by about 100 employees, will be home to 500 scientists, engineers and support staff by the end of the year.

Dinyar Devitre, chief financial officer for Philip Morris parent company Altria Group Inc., said the center will give the company "a much brighter future" through improvements of current products and the development of new and reduced risk tobacco products.

He said it also would give the nation's largest manufacturer "a leg up in the smokeless category," like snuff.

Philip Morris spokesman David Sylvia said the company's growth is going to be driven by development of new products and "work that we are doing to reduce the harm related to all of our tobacco products."

Bay Bridge-Tunnel Piers to Be Repaired

Maintenance will last 500 days and cost at least $11 million

VIRGINIA BEACH, VA. | The endless cycle of tides and shifting sands are some of the attractions of coastal Virginia. But for the commission that operates the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel, those forces of nature have added up to a massive maintenance challenge.

The commission is seeking bids to have 191,000 tons of granite carefully placed at the bottom of piers where erosion has stripped away as much as 25 feet of sand in some places.

When too much sand washes away, the piers can start to move.

"But that's not going to happen," said Robert Johnson, director of maintenance at the bridge-tunnel.

"That's why we are doing this project now, so we won't have problems in the future."

The work is scheduled to begin in the spring and will take place over 500 days, enough time to give a contractor time to deal with work-stopping storms.

The repairs are expected to cost $11 million to $15 million, bridge-tunnel officials said.

This is the fifth time underwater erosion repairs have been undertaken, usually along limited sections of the bridges. (AP)

Va. Official Admits to Fixing Tickets

LEESBURG, VA. | A candidate for the top law enforcement job in Loudoun County is making the unusual admission that he has fixed many traffic tickets for friends and fellow officers in the past.

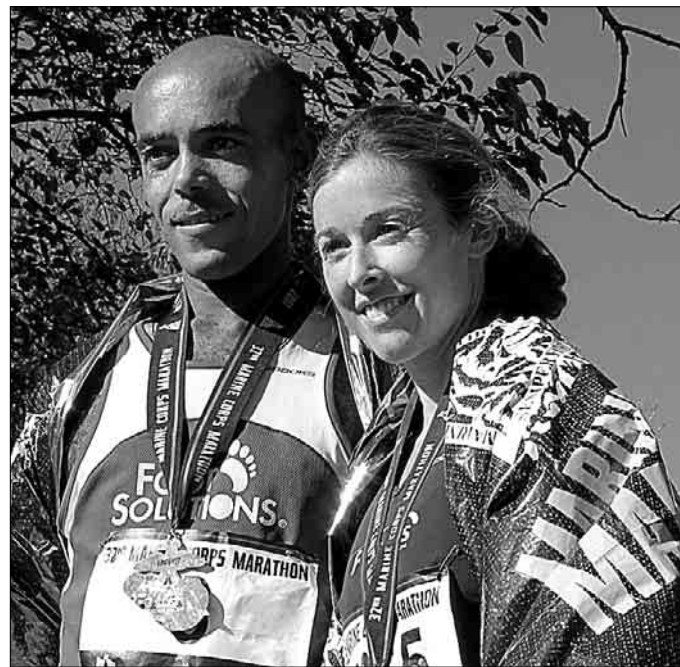

Republican Gregory Ahlemann, a former deputy who is trying to unseat longtime Loudoun Sheriff Stephen Simpson, said he has never asked fellow deputies to tear up tickets for anything more serious than speeding. He's running on the promise to "restore integrity" to the sheriff's office.

But Ahlemann says he won't discourage deputies from fixing speeding tickets if he's elected sheriff. The 37-year-old says it's important to allow deputies to use their discretion. Law enforcement officials say the practice of fixing tickets for friends is generally not condoned or acknowledged.

Simpson says he doesn't recall ever fixing a ticket for a friend. Democratic candidate Michael George says he's never fixed a ticket. (AP)

Redskins never stand a chance in blowout loss at New England

REDSKINS | Tom Brady and the peerless Patriots keep getting better.

Really.

The quarterback was merely magnificent Sunday, throwing for three touchdowns and running for two more as New England crushed the Washington Redskins 52-7 in an easy tuneup for its battle of unbeatens at Indianapolis.

Linebacker Mike Vrabel was a force on both sides of the ball in the biggest rout in a season filled with them. He caught a touchdown pass and forced three fumbles by quarterback Jason Campbell that led to 17 points.

The first half of the season is over. Bring on the Super Bowl champs.

The Patriots (8-0) and the Colts (7-0) both have perfect records going into next Sunday's game on the field where they lost last, more than nine months ago in the AFC championship game.

No one has been able to stay close to the Patriots since then.

Halfway into the season, Brady already has a career-high 30 scoring passes. He extended his NFL record to eight games at the start of a season with at least three touchdowns passes.

By the time he was replaced by Matt Cassel midway through the fourth quarter, the Patriots had outgained the Redskins 451 yards to 157. Even that change didn't slow down the Patriots. Cassel scored on a 15-yard run for a 52-0 lead with 5:53 remaining.

Washington (4-3) avoided a shutout when Campbell threw a 15-yard touchdown pass to Chris Cooley with three minutes left.

By then, most of the fans had left, many of them likely rushing home to watch the Boston Red Sox try to win the World Series at the Colorado Rockies.

The Patriots have scored at least 34 points in each game and have won by at least 17 points. They've outscored opponents by an average of 40.5-15.1. The Colts margin is 32-14.6. Brady completed 29 of 38 passes for 306 yards and no interceptions. He's been picked off just twice all season, although he did lose a fumble Sunday. HOWARD ULMAN (AP)

Sunday's Stats

Rushing: WASHINGTON: Portis 11-27, Betts 3-9, Campbell 1-7, Sellers 1-4. NEW ENGLAND: Maroney 14-75, Faulk 5-32, Evans 5-24, Cassel 1-15, Brady 4-14, Eckel 4-2. Passing: WASHINGTON: Campbell 21-36-1-197. NEW ENGLAND: Brady 29-38-0-306. Receiving: WASHINGTON: S. Moss 6-41, Portis 5-54, Randle 1-3-43, Cooley 3-31, Yoder 3-23, Lloyd 1-5. NEW ENGLAND: Welker 8-89, Faulk 7-57, Stallworth 4-44, Gaffney 4-39, R. Moss 3-47.

Grading GIBBS

→ Best Call: Keeping Jason Campbell in the game despite the blowout score should be a valuable lesson for the young QB who learned how far he has to go to be among the NFL's best.

→ Worst Call: It certainly wouldn't have impacted the outcome, but how hard was it to figure out that linebacker Mike Vrabel was going to be the target of Tom Brady's TD in the second quarter? Whenever Vrabel plays offense, he has the ball thrown to him.

→ Best Adjustment: This was a game where no change in game plan would have made a difference. Clearly, the Patriots are one of the best teams in the league, while the Redskins are just middle of the pack.

F Beaten by a better team or not, that 52-7 score really stings.

The first NFL game in London resembles traditional mud bowl

NFL | For art, they could have gone to the British Museum. For something grand, Big Ben and Buckingham Palace were a train ride away.

Instead, what the fans got on this history-making Sunday in London was old-fashioned, muck-it-up football — not very entertaining and not pretty at all, unless you ask the New York Giants, who came out with a 13-10 victory over the still-winless Miami Dolphins.

"We won, so, obviously, it was worth it," said Giants defensive lineman Osi Umenyiora, who was

AL in a League of Its Own

Recent records, stats make the NL look like it's just a minor league

BASEBALL | As the Boston Red Sox keep shooting double after double down the lines and into the gaps, the Cleveland Indians, Los Angeles Angels and New York Yankees must be wondering whether they'd be flattening the Rockies, too.

Arguably, all four American League playoff teams are better than any National League team this year. "I think so," Chicago White Sox owner Jerry Reinsdorf said Sunday, "but it's just an opinion."

No Jerry, it's more than an opinion. It's backed up by facts.

All four AL playoff teams had 94-96 wins. Arizona was the top team in the NL at 90-72. It would be an exaggeration to say the NL has become a glorified version of the Pacific Coast League, but some nights it sure seems that way.

Let's look at interleague play, which began in mid-May and ended before the All-Star break. The AL went 137-115, down from 154-98 last year but the fourth straight season the AL held an advantage.

And the AL has won 10 consecutive All-Star games played to a decision, going 5-0 since the rule change that gave the All-Star winner home-field advantage in the World Series.

Sure, AL teams have the advantage of a full-time designated hitter in their ballparks and NL teams must improvise. But in the NL ballparks, AL clubs lose those big boppers unless they rejigger their defense.

Mathematically, that should even things out. But that hasn't been the case. "Just a cycle," Hall of Famer Mike Schmidt said. "The AL has more veteran stars. The NL, like the AL of 20 years ago, is now the young league. It takes strong veteran leadership to get today's youth to rise to their potential." RONALD BLUM (AP)

Pentagon's contest for self-driving car brings out sponsors

LOS ANGELES | When the Pentagon's research arm first called for innovators to design and race a self-driving car to make warfare safer, a ragtag bunch of garage tinkerers, computer geeks and even high school students answered.

No one won the Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency's inaugural contest in 2004. An encore the following year produced five robots that crossed the finish line, and a team from Stanford University drove away with the $2 million prize.

If yesteryear's contests evoked the Wild West, with teams working in the open desert on a shoestring budget, this year's is modern: The field is more savvy, the terrain is urban and corporate sponsors, and public relations machines have entered the fray.

"They've become like NASCAR teams with multiple sponsors and stickers on everything," said Peter Singer, a Brookings Institution senior fellow who has followed the DARPA competitions. "It shows that it's becoming big business."

Mark Eldridge, below, and Todd Martin put stickers on a VW Passat, the Stanford University team's self-driving car entered in the 2007 DARPA Urban Challenge.

For the first time, there even will be a sponsors-only section for companies to display their swag next to the pit stop on the grounds of the old George Air Force Base east of Los Angeles on race day, Nov. 3. The races are part of the Pentagon's effort to fulfill a congressional mandate to have a third of military ground vehicles unmanned by 2015.

Stanford, whose Volkswagen

Touareg beat out two vehicles from archival Carnegie Mellon University last year, received so many sponsorships for the upcoming race that team leaders rejected about a half dozen offers because of a lack of real estate on their latest vehicle, which has the body of a VW Passat. Stanford team leader Sebastian Thrun believes corporate involvement has not diluted the competition. "It still has a strong university flavor," Thrun said. (AP)

The Album That Could

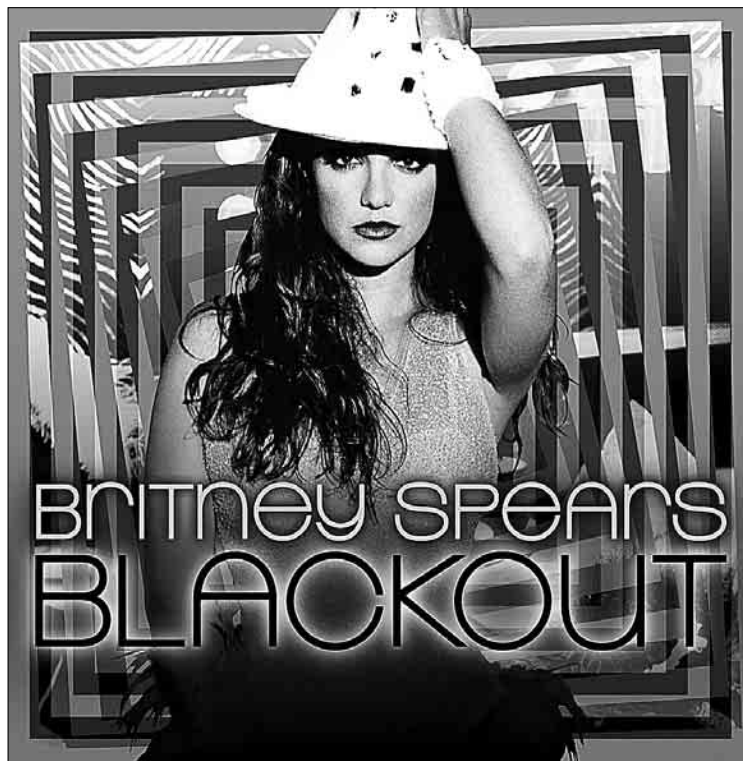

Britney Spears' hot new tracks just might turn it all around

MUSIC | "Blackout," Britney Spears' first studio album in four years, is not only a very good album; it's her best work ever — a triumph, with not a bad song to be found among the 12 tracks.

Granted, a Spears rave should be put in its proper context — it's not like we're talking Bob Dylan here. Spears is a lightweight singer who flourishes only when she has great songs and great producers to supplement her minimal vocal talent.

But when she has that help, she's fierce. And she gets that boost on every single track on "Blackout," a sizzling, well-crafted, electro-pop dancefest that should return her to pop's elite.

This is a shocker, given all the lowlights Spears has given us this year. From her embarrassing MTV Video Music Awards performance to her bizarre public antics to allegations that she's an irresponsible parent, Spears has been a walking disaster. It seems amazing that she even found her way to a recording studio, let alone did anything of value while in it.

THE TALENTED MS. SPEARS: She made music that rocks. Do we smell a comeback?

But Spears emerges on "Blackout" as the antithesis of her tabloid persona — confident, sensual and in control.

"I got my eye on you," she coos on one of the album's best tracks, "Radar," a sexy techno groove that you can't help but bounce to — a feeling that permeates all of

"Blackout's" tracks. You won't find any saccharine ballads or fluffy pop on this disc — it's all about generating heat on the dance floor (and if Spears has shown us anything in the last year, it's that she knows how to party).

On the aptly titled "Freakshow," produced by Danja (who worked on Justin Timberlake's "FutureSex/LoveSounds"), Spears gets voyeuristic with a tantalizing promise to get wild in the club. The hypnotic "Get Naked (I Got a Plan)," also produced by Danja, features Spears breathlessly asking, "What I gotta do to make you move my body" before demanding, "take it off, take it off, take it off."

She emerges on 'Blackout' as the antithesis of her tabloid persona.

Listening to "Blackout" is not only an energetic release; it's also a relief: No, Spears hasn't completely lost it, and, yes, her career has a flicker of fire left — actually, much, much more. But with all the damage Spears has done and continues to do to her public image, will anyone outside her core fan base (and who knows what that consists of these days) care anymore?

This album is the first, great step in making that happen. NEKESA MUMBI MOODY (AP)

If at First You Don't Succeed ...

George Lucas takes an erstwhile flop and tries, tries again

JONES | George Lucas has a stunning collection of pop-culture artifacts. The loneliest of which, or the artifact most in need of rescue, is an early 1990s television series, "The Young Indiana Jones Chronicles," which is, by the standards of the 63-year-old filmmaker's career, a beautiful loser. It was also, he says, "the single most fun I ever had with any project." For both those reasons, he is back for more.

Over the past four years, Lucas and Paramount Home Video have pumped millions of dollars into reframing "Young Indiana" as a lavish, three-volume library of DVDs with a staggering number of extras, including 94 highly polished documentaries on famous people and moments in history. That grand content and the packaging and marketing commitment to the project are the sort you might expect for an anniversary reissue of "Gone With the Wind," not a show that was dropped by ABC after two seasons and moved on to the smaller stage of the Family Channel.

"I've never been that involved in making commercial product; that is just not what I do," said Lucas, whose "Star Wars" films have a global box-office gross of $4.3 billion. "What I do is get an idea of something I want to do, and I do it. It's about coming up with a great idea. I knew I was breaking all the rules." GEOFF BOUCHER (LOS ANGELES TIMES)

Special Report solves the “My home isn’t selling” problem

WASHINGTON METRO – A “Special Report” explodes what its author exposes as “The myth of slow home sales.” In fact, the Report explains, in clear and plain English, how a home owner who wants to sell can not only count on a sale within 120 days but can be guaranteed that the sale will occur.

The Report proves its accuracy by quoting specific local instances in which the technique it describes has sold homes time after time, quickly, efficiently, and at a favorable price.

The author of the report, noted realtor Frank Sanya, has made numerous appearances on both television and radio.

Mr. Sanya states that the Report represents the compendium of his many years of real estate experience and can be of substantial value to homeowners, especially those whose homes have been on the market unsold for a considerable period of time. The author emphasizes that although he does not accept every listing, by following the Report’s procedures he accomplishes a sale in every instance in which he is the broker of record.

The secret, says the Report, is a combination of traits and procedures that consistently result in a successful sale. For a free copy of the Report, go to a private but available Web site – www.WantItSoldNow.com.

Studying the Antidepressant Effects of Sleep Deprivation

Sleep deprivation has rapid & brief antidepressant effects in some depressed people. NIMH is exploring how a drug that mimics the effects of sleep deprivation in the brain, may also bring about a rapid antidepressant response in people who are depressed. Understanding how this works may help us understand depression and design better antidepressants. Study includes multiple overnight stays & free sleep evaluations to rule out sleep disorders. NIMH is seeking people ages 18-65 with depression who:

- Are free of other serious medical conditions
- Do not have any sleep disorders

'Chrome Dreams II' harks back to the sound of Neil's youth

MUSIC | When last we heard from Neil Young, he was busily excoriating the Bush administration on last year's "Living With War," a scathing and deeply poignant album. Young changes direction some on his latest, the sequel to an album that never came out.

"Chrome Dreams" was slated for release in November 1976 and simply never appeared, though some of its songs, including "Like a Hurricane," ended up elsewhere. Fittingly, "Chrome Dreams II" is a return of sorts to Young's earliest approach to music, which grouped songs by feeling rather than by a single subject.

He's interested in the human condition this time, singing about a rail-riding hobo on "Boxcar," lecherous thoughts on "Dirty Old Man" and spirituality on several different songs. The centerpiece, though, is "Ordinary People," a surprisingly focused 18-minute inventory of the ways in which people get lost in their own lives.

The song's growling guitars and ramshackle vocal harmonies sit easily alongside the simple, rootsy acoustic guitar of "Beautiful Bluebird" or the subdued '70s pop piano of "The Way," which features a quietly buoyant choir on the chorus. With its varied sound and subtle optimism, "Chrome Dreams II" stands in contrast to Young's recent, strident efforts, but at least he got around to sharing these dreams. ERIC R. DANTON (THE HARTFORD COURANT)

Good Ol' Schulz

The man who brought the world 'Peanuts' is an 'American Master'

CHARLIES | After a half-century in the "funny papers" and more than seven years since his death, cartoonist Charles Schulz continues to inspire passion and scrutiny. "American Masters" (9 p.m., PBS) profiles the artist in the film "Good Ol' Charles Schulz."

Today's cartoon characters speak to specific market niches. "Peanuts" truly appealed to everybody: kids just learning to read, teens wrestling with self-doubt and parents who saw their own children in the four-paneled universe.

Clearly, even the greats read "Peanuts." In the mid-1960s, Johnny Carson penned a best-selling joke book called "Happiness Is a Dry Martini." John Lennon appropriated the same allusion in the 1968 song "Happiness Is a Warm Gun." In 1969, NASA got into the act when astronauts named their spacecrafts Charlie Brown and Snoopy and sent them to the moon.

With all of this adulation, you'd think Schulz would be on top of the world, but he remained an insecure and insular soul, an emotionally reticent Scandinavian from the Midwest, driven to excel but haunted by a small voice asking, "Just who do you think you are?" KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

Mounting costs may force beer suppliers to raise their prices

Fans of Snipes Mountain Brewery's cloudy Hefeweizen relish the subtle wheat flavor of the bright, summery brew, and like beer drinkers everywhere, they know when their favorite brew tastes a little too hoppy or bitter.

Connoisseurs could be in for a surprise this year.

Small brewers from Australia to Oregon face the daunting prospect of tweaking their recipes or scaling back their product lines, thanks to a worldwide shortage of one key ingredient and rising prices for others.

Oh, and one other thing: Beer prices are likely to climb. How high is anybody's guess, but craft brewers don't have the means to hedge against rising prices like their larger rivals do.

"I'm guessing, at a minimum, at least a 10 percent jump in beer prices for the average consumer before the end of the year," said Terry Butler, brewmaster at central Washington's Snipes Mountain.

Sales have been relatively flat in recent years among the country's big three brewers — Anheuser-Busch Cos., Molson Coors Brewing Co. and Miller Brewing Co. — while small, independent brewers have experienced tremendous growth. The craft brewing industry experienced a 12 percent increase by volume in 2006, with 6.7 million barrels of beer.

Now the bright spot in the brewing industry is facing mounting costs on nearly every front. Fuel, aluminum and glass prices have been going up quickly over a period of several years. Barley and wheat prices have skyrocketed as more farmers plant corn to meet increasing demand for ethanol, while others plant feed crops to replace acres lost to corn.

A decade-long oversupply of hops that had forced farmers to abandon the crop is finally gone, and harvests were down this year. Meanwhile, Australia endured its worst drought on record, and hail storms across Europe damaged crops.

Big brewers can hedge against rising prices for raw ingredients and can negotiate better, longer-term contracts for ingredients, while smaller brewers generally are stuck with whatever is left.

So far, price increases have been pretty modest — less than a dollar per 12-pack at retail, said Harry Schuhmacher, editor of the online trade publication Beer Business Daily.

"Brewers are trying to take price-ing up, but it's hard when beer is pretty sensitive to pricing per volume — and when drinkers are leaving beer to go to wine and spirits," he said.

It may be too soon to say if, or how high, prices might go up, said Paul Gatz, director of the Boulder, Colo.-based Brewers Association. The bigger hit for craft brewers might be to the fun side — testing ingredients and new or seasonal brews.

"I would think brewers will try to keep their existing beers in the marketplace, if they can," he said. "But this may put a damper on some of that innovation and experimentation for some of those hoppy beers, which is a shame."

Operators on holiday hotlines have plenty of great stories to tell

No matter how dreadful your holiday dinner disaster story is, chances are Mary Clingman can top it.

After 27 years as one of the reassuring voices on the other end of the Butterball Turkey Talk-Line, she has heard just about everything.

“One of the first calls was a lady who called and said her kitchen was on fire,” Clingman recalls. “I told her to hang up and call the fire department.”

November marks the start of prime time for the operators who staff the cooking hotlines that help Americans navigate the mishaps, blunders and outright silliness sometimes involved in preparing holiday feasts.

And thanks to all those blunders, people like Robyn Sargent have great stories to tell.

Burnt turkeys and other kitchen mishaps are common during the holiday season.

Sargent is a baking instructor at the King Arthur Flour Co. in Norwich, Vt. She helped launch the company's Baker's Hotline in 1993.

Her favorite disaster story involves a woman who called while trying to bake bread.

Sargent says the woman described how the dough she had

“One of the first calls was a lady who said her kitchen was on fire. I told her to hang up and call the fire department.”

put in the oven to rise was oozing out the sides of her oven and gushing onto the floor in volcano-like bursts.

It turns out the woman took the recipe literally when it said add a packet of yeast. Sargent says the woman didn't realize the recipe meant a 2 1/4-teaspoon packet, not the 1-pound package she had bought.

At the Ocean Spray Consumer Helpline, calls have ranged from odd (“Help! I can't get the sauce out of the can!”) to weird (“Can I dye my hair with your cranberry juice?”) to disturbing (“Can I give cranberry juice to my cat for its bladder infection?”).

Speaking of cats, one caller to the Foster Farms Turkey Helpline wanted to know how to fix a turkey that the family cat had chewed holes in prior to roasting. Foster Farms spokeswoman Teresa Lenz says the woman was urged to buy a new bird.

Then there's Clingman's kitty litter incident.

A caller from Georgia wanted advice from the Butterball folks on cooking a turkey inside her husband's new gas grill. The catch was that her husband didn't want the grill to get dirty, so he'd filled it with kitty litter to absorb the grease.

Would it be OK to grill the turkey with the litter? No, Clingman didn't think so.

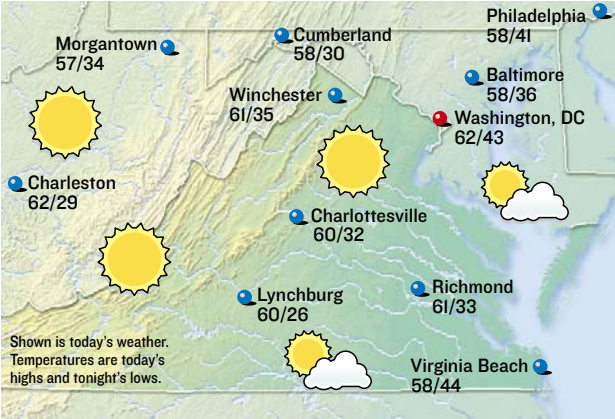

Becky Wahlund, director of test kitchens at Land O'Lakes, says the company eventually shut down its hotline after realizing most people just wanted recipes, not help. But Wahlund says dealing with all those callers taught the company it needed to reform the way it writes its recipes.

Which is why you'll no longer find instructions to “cream the butter and the sugar.” Too many callers made it apparent that people didn't understand that it meant “mix until creamy,” not “add cream,” Wahlund said. TANYA BRICKING LEACH (AP)

Signature Sneaks

Nike lets shoe fanatics call the design shots

Apparently, there are a lot of wannabe shoe designers out there.

Thanks to the success of its online make-your-own-shoe feature and a tiny SoHo studio that has seen a steady stream of celebrities customizing their kicks, Nike is taking its ID program mainstream.

A new NikeID "lab" is now open at Niketown on 57th Street in Manhattan, where consumers make an appointment to sit down at a computer and put their own stamp on a pair of sneakers. Three to four weeks later, custom sneakers arrive at their doorsteps.

There are more features at this studio than at the online version, which attracts 3 million unique visitors each month. There also are consultants assigned to each "designer" to help them realize their shoe fantasies.

Starting with a choice of subtle gray suede shoes — ranging from high tops to all-terrain styles — that are considered the blank canvas, consumers pick everything from color and materials to the fit. They can also add a "signature" on the back of the shoe.

Shoes designed by Nike-sponsored athletes are on display for inspiration, including NBA star Kobe Bryant's white and green cleats with a red swoosh — a nod to his wife's ancestral roots in Mexico — and Maria Sharapova's low-profile sneakers in black with silver and hot pink and "NYC" on the back.

Bryant also designed a pair of black and white basketball shoes inspired by "Harry Potter."

"You know something about someone when you see their shoe," says Trevor Edwards, vice president of Nike global brand and category management.

He sees it as part of a larger trend of people

“It's not just about people just wanting Nike; they want Nike on their terms.”

TREVOR EDWARDS, NIKE

wanting to be different enough to stand out from the crowd, but not too different. "It's not just about people just wanting Nike; they want Nike on their terms," says Edwards, wearing his own black-on-black Air Force 1s.

The company looks to the ID program as a way to ramp up its personal connection with customers, he explains, and the offerings, including apparel, will continue to expand.

Said customers have responded: The studio is booked through October.

Another ID lab is planned for London later this year. SAMANTHA CRITCHELL/AP

Three's Company

What do 15th-century painter Hieronymus Bosch and celebrity makeup artist Bobbi Brown have in common? Triptychs! Only his involve nightmarish visions of hell, and hers involve sparkles. BURNT SUGAR METALLICS, a three-panel eye shadow palette from Brown ($45, Bobbi browncosmetics.com), blends subtle shimmer with everyday neutrals. Cousin MIDNIGHT METALLICS intimates with a fancy mix of unicorn silver and intense deep blue, but the shadow is so pliable that the result looks classy even when clumsily applied.

Discussions

Kurt Cobain Film

Filmmaker AJ SCHNACK was online Friday and discussed "Kurt Cobain About a Son," his documentary about the Nirvana frontman based on extensive audio interviews conducted by journalist Michael Azerrad.

When you set out to make the movie, did you know you would take the approach that you did and just use the audio tapes and nothing else?

I did that in my last film ("Gigantic" — about They Might Be Giants) and I was really interested in doing something that was more visual, more like a tone poem. And I knew that these were the best interviews ever done with Kurt, so there was no need to add any other element to them.

There were a lot of problems with the film "Kurt & Courtney," but I thought one of the most prominent was that the filmmaker didn't use any Nirvana music. Why did you make that same choice? Is it a rights issue?

No, I actually had planned on ending the film with a Nirvana song, but if you see the film, I think that you'll understand why a Nirvana song at that moment wouldn't really work. It's actually a quiet, lonely moment, and using a Nirvana track felt like a bad Video Music Awards tribute reel.

Do you believe that Kurt would have been satisfied with the use of his image and music as a commercial commodity throughout the years?

I think that what you're asking is part of a perception that Kurt hated commerciality and fame. This is not entirely true. In some cases, he made very specific choices that were designed to make him well known or make him a lot of money.

Horoscope

By Stella Wilder

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You can promise someone the moon, but the fact is that you can deliver only so much before your resources begin to run dry. Be realistic in all things.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You have little time to waste, so why play hard to get? Be up front and direct with your expectations and demands; get an answer.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You may not feel as though you can stick it out as long as some others, but you're likely to surprise yourself when the time comes.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You won't have much trouble finding a way out, provided you are looking at a problem from a realistic, down-to-earth point of view.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You're going to want to follow your instincts throughout the day, but now and then be willing to stick to the rules, regardless.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Take care that you're not sacrificing something permanent and valuable for something that is temporary and far less significant.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Take care that your interest and care do not combine to make you something of a nag. Give advice when asked; otherwise, keep silent.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) There is no need for you to be overly protective or conservative at this time. Dangers are few, especially in and around the home.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You're in the mood to be pampered — and why not? Make your desires known, and that special someone will go out of his or her way to oblige.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your love life may be in a shambles at this time, but you can recover quickly if you'll only make a firm decision regarding personal behavior.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Compatibility need not be an issue. All you have to do is decide that you'll get along with anyone who comes your way; it's that simple.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You can bet there will be fireworks if you insist on following your present course. A loved one may actually put his or her foot down.

Modeling a Ghostly Look

AFTER READING your article about haunted houses ("The Screaming Critics") in the Oct. 24 issue, I was pleasantly frightened by the pallid, cadaverous faces of the otherworldly women pictured in the story ("Smart Wedding March") on the next page. Were they zombies shedding the tattered, graying vestments of the grave? Ghosts? Lost souls in a new Stephen King movie? No, the poor grim ladies were fashion models in Lhuillier's spring 2008 bridal collection. Now I'm really scared.
